

STATURE

The Japanese want to increase their stature, and they believe more milk will do it;

So they have invited an American to come over and help them increase their milk supply;

Which will add considerably to their enjoyment of life, if not to their stature;

Especially if the milk is as rich and creamy as that served at CHILDS.

Pure milk, produced under ideal conditions in carefully selected dairies.

U. S. SEEKS SPEEDY SETTLEMENT WITH JAPAN AND ALLIES

Failure to Agree on Cables Impresses Capital With Danger in Situation.

HOPE TO AVOID BREAK

No Move on Foot Now to Combine American Fleets in Pacific Waters.

RACE ISSUE POSTPONED

Europe and Far East Both Show Tendency to Ignore This Country's Rights.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. New York, March 14. (The Herald Administration is hoping for a settlement of outstanding problems with Japan.

The necessity of bringing to a head all the differences between the two countries as a means of preventing the continuation of a situation which might result seriously was made clear to-day by the failure of the International Communications Congress to come to an agreement over the distribution of the former German cables.

Failure to reach an agreement indicates that there is no disposition on the part of the Allies and Japan to yield to the contention of this Government that its rights previous to the peace are involved in this controversy, or to meet in any degree the American position concerning the island of Yap. It is clear that the United States will make of Yap a test case whereby the sincerity of the Allies may be determined.

While it is held that the controversy over Yap is between this country and the allied European Powers, it is clear that Japan could clear the situation quickly by yielding its claim to sole occupancy of the island, to exclusion of other Powers.

Hope to Settle Peacefully. Just as the Administration's clearly announced intention of adopting a vigorous foreign policy, which would protect the rights of Americans the world over, was without truculency, so the attitude toward Japan is without suggestion of eventual hostility. It is for the purpose of seeking complete amity in the relations with Japan that a better understanding with that country is sought.

Settlement of general problems dealing with American and Japanese participation in the development of the East necessarily reverts to a decision concerning Yap, since it involves the well established American doctrine of the open door in China and an even fair chance in dealing with the commercial and political development of the East.

It can be said authoritatively that this Government has not undertaken to combine the Atlantic and Pacific fleets in the Pacific Ocean, a course that might be regarded as a direct threat against Japan. Neither is it planned to establish bases of threatening strength at this time in Hawaii or elsewhere. But plans of the American Government are taking into consideration all strategic possibilities of the future.

The situation in the Pacific demands a powerful fleet, and to this programme the Administration is committed with the proviso of "approximate disarmament" in the event an international understanding can be reached on this subject.

General plans in the Pacific will probably await the return of Gen. Wood with his report on the Philippines. These plans will include strategic position of the fleet and establishment of proposed bases.

Beyond this there are no definite plans under consideration relative to the Pacific except the general one mentioned of procuring a better working arrangement with the Japanese Government as quickly as possible.

Race Question Must Wait. Until the outstanding difficulty over Yap can be arranged it is unlikely the new Administration will give any consideration to the understanding on immigration reached by Ambassadors Morris for the United States and Shidehara for Japan. That understanding, it is understood, explicitly conferred upon Japanese in this country the same civil rights enjoyed by nationals of other countries. It aimed to meet the difficulty presented by the passage of the California anti-Jap law, and to establish a similar law has been passed by the State of Washington, and the Secretary of State has been informed it represents the overwhelming sentiment of the people of that State.

The necessity of disposing of the question of Yap before negotiating the immigration question increases the necessity of a prompt adjustment of American relations with Europe. A hint of the importance of making the European settlement reasonably soon is assumed to have been conveyed to the allied Powers in the date fixed for the convening of the extra session, April 11.

YOUTH CONFESSES AS ASSASSIN OF PREMIER

Motor Car Mechanics Killed Dato 'to Keep Their Jobs.'

MADRID, March 14.—Pedro Mateo, a 23-year-old anarchist, who was arrested to-day on suspicion of having been one of the murderers of Premier Dato on Tuesday night last, confessed to the crime when taken before a judge. He said he was an occupant of the side car from which the Premier was shot, that he fired two pistols and saw the Premier fall to the floor of the automobile. Mateo gave the name of his accomplice as Ramon Casanova, who is being sought by the police. He warned the police to beware of Casanova, who, he asserted, had a camera filled with explosives.

Mateo declared he had previously carefully rehearsed the attempt with comrades on the fatal day he lay in wait for Dato's automobile from 7 o'clock. Mateo earned 500 pesetas monthly as a mechanic. His comrades also are motor car mechanics. He said calmly that they killed Dato because they wanted to keep their jobs.

Half of France's Youth Unfit for Army Service

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK HERALD. Copyright, 1921, by THE NEW YORK HERALD. New York, March 14.

HALF of France's youths are physically unfit for military service, owing to lack of opportunity to take physical exercise, according to reports by medical boards which have been examining the class of 1921, which will join the colors next month. Out of more than 300,000 eligibles only 155,000 measured up to the ordinary physical standards. Doctors recommend the passage immediately of a law making physical education compulsory in all French schools, if this new national peril is to be overcome. Also they insist that the hygienic advantages must be increased. Paris, for instance, with 3,000,000 population, possesses only four swimming pools.

COMMONS ADVANCES REPARATIONS BILL

Measure Providing for 50 Per Cent. Levy on German Goods Criticized.

LONDON, March 14.—The House of Commons to-day passed without division the second reading of the reparations bill, which provides for a 50 per cent. levy in allied countries on the purchase price of imported German goods, to be applied to reparations. The bill, which was formally introduced in the House on Friday, was strongly criticized, mainly on account of its alleged failure to attain the desired end.

Horatio Bottomley, who moved the rejection of the bill, caused laughter by declaring that Premier Lloyd George had entered the conference in shining armor, but whenever he removed his helmet a copy of the Sermon on the Mount fell out.

Former Premier Asquith expressed grave misgivings as to whether anything could be obtained by the measure to compensate for the adverse reaction on British trade.

Mr. Lloyd George, defending the bill, revealed his previous arguments. He still declined to comply with the demands, and ridiculed the idea that it would pay Germany to send goods to the value of £50,000,000 to the United States and then back to England to evade the law. He said Canada would decide for herself whether to work with the scheme, and even should Italy and Belgium refuse to cooperate Germany would still be deprived of trade valued at £100,000,000, half of which represented wages.

The Premier believed that in the event of Germany refusing to aid in the plan it would operate so disastrously that Germany would surrender and arrange an alternative plan. The measure, said Mr. Lloyd George, was a substitute for force and the class of arms, and he appealed to the House to give it speedy passage as a means of relieving the overburdened taxpayers.

In the course of the discussion Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced that the French Government would introduce a similar bill immediately.

Replying to questions Sir Robert Stevenson, President of the Board of Trade, informed the House that British exports to Germany in 1920 were valued at £21,000,000, and imports from Germany at £31,000,000, the amount of the latter in the last quarter of the year being double that of the first quarter.

6 HANGED IN DUBLIN; ALL IRELAND ASTIR

British Government Carries Out Murder and Treason Sentences in Mountjoy Jail.

20,000 OUTSIDE GATES

Religious Services Mark Vigil Until Notice Tells of Execution's End.

DUBLIN, March 14.—Not since the executions following the 1916 uprising, with the possible exception of the hanging of Kevin Barry in November last for an attack on a military escort, has Ireland been so profoundly stirred as this morning, when six men went to the scaffold in Mountjoy Jail. Although 6 o'clock had been fixed for the execution of the first pair, it was not until 8:30 that the crowd knew the fate of the prisoners. At that time the following notice was posted outside the jail gates:

"The sentence of the law passed on Thomas Whelan and Patrick Moran, found guilty of murder, and on Thomas Bryan, Patrick Doyle, Frank Flood and Bernard Ryan, found guilty of high treason in levying war, has been carried into execution."

When the notice was posted Mrs. Whelan, mother of Thomas Whelan, asked that it be taken down so that she might kiss her son's name. All the relatives of the executed men joined in a request for their bodies, but up to 1 o'clock this afternoon no reply had been received from the authorities.

No hint reached the watching multitude of the grim proceedings going on in a distant wing of the big prison, but hourly, beginning at 6 o'clock, the Rosary was recited. But for a number of reverent voices and the occasional sob of a woman, profound silence was maintained.

Shortly after posting of the notice that the executions had been carried out the last gathering dispersed silently, many later attending the funeral of Patrick Doyle's twin baby. Mrs. Doyle with the other twin on her arm visited her husband yesterday to say goodbye.

Bryan, who was taken suddenly ill before her husband's sentence was confirmed, was not to be executed to-day. She was conveyed to the prison Sunday afternoon for a farewell visit. Every church was crowded at masses celebrated after the executions for the repose of the six men's souls.

Twenty thousand people gathered outside the prison during the hours that the executions were going on, and all work in the city stopped until 11 o'clock. Even the post office was closed and telegraph service was suspended.

An altar had been improvised near the prison doors and on the walls and trees in the prison yard sacred images and pictures had been placed. Everywhere candles were burned, scores of persons in the heart of the dense throng holding them aloft throughout the long vigil. Here and there priests or women led in prayers and hymns in which every one joined earnestly. Hundreds kneeling in the roadway were forced to rise when an armored car forced its way through the crowd.

Two of the men executed, Patrick Moran and Thomas Whelan, were charged with complicity in the killing of intelligence officers in Dublin on November 21 last. Whelan's two brothers are in the United States, one of them in the American Army. The other four, Frank Flood, Bernard Ryan, Thomas Bryan and Patrick Doyle, were accused of participating in an ambush near here in January in which one member of the attacking party was killed.

LENINE DECLARES REVOLT WILL FAIL

know it is not the last bolt they will shoot at us. I know their game, for I am engaged in it myself.

"Napoleon said that a battle meant two large bodies of men trying to scare one another. Each of them receive successive waves of panic, and when the wave passes a certain point of intensity, the army subjected to it breaks and flees. No commands, no appeals to patriotism or to honor can save the situation once that danger point is passed and the soldiers become mad, frightened beasts, impervious to reason.

"The world is now divided into two armies, which are trying to frighten each other, and we will see which side gets frightened first. I do not think it will be the great, solid mass of the proletariat of this vast, unlettered Russia, which forms a part of the world's proletariat. Our enemies have weaker nerves than we and the very superiority of their education makes them more susceptible to the dread, while of panic.

"And in their panic lies our victory, for under the influence of panic they will do things to their own people which even we would not do to them. They are doing such things now. They have got panic mad. This drawer is filled with hush proofs of it as you would hardly credit. Both in Russia and outside Russia they are nearly always doing the very things we would like them to do. Nevertheless they are not quite broken yet, and they possess a formidable reserve of intellect and strength which is certainly to be dreaded.

"However, they are more accessible to suggestion, for they all read, and if they read history right they will see that their doom is foretold in it. For history is a record of the proletariat's gradual rise. Kings have gone; nobles have come; the people alone will remain. Of course there may be checks to the reactions and capitalism may conquer for a time. But it will only be for a time. In this frozen land we have sown the seed which cannot ever be destroyed."

Lenine drew attention to an article he had written in praise of the bourgeois specialists—that is, the engineers, etc.—against whom the Bolshevik workers have prejudices which Lenine is trying to overcome. He wrote:

"The bourgeois specialist who knows his job is ten times more useful to us than the conceited Communist who is only able to shout slogans and write twaddle.

Discussing French literature he repeated a ballad by the French poet, Heranger, called "Le Chant du Cosaque," in which the author, although writing at the time when the Cossack was the strongest support of reaction, prophesied that the time would come when the Cossack would smash the thrones of Kings and the altars of priests.

"That time," Lenine said, "has come."

TROTSKY DECIDES TO BLOCKADE KRONSTADT

Won't Bombard, So as to Spare the Petropavlovsk.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 14.—Leon Trotsky, the Russian Soviet War Minister, according to advices received here to-day, has decided to blockade Kronstadt despite the fact that this will entail great suffering to the 8,000 women and children living in the town.

The reason for Trotsky's unwillingness to bombard the town is the presence of the warship Petropavlovsk, which he is anxious to retain intact, the advices said.

KRONSTADT DOWNS BOLSHEVIST AIRPLANE

Attacks by Armored Cars Over Ice Repulsed.

LONDON, March 15 (Tuesday).—A Bolshevik airplane was shot down by the Kronstadt guns Saturday, according to a despatch to the London Times from Abe, Finland. Attacks by armored cars over the ice were repulsed, one car being sunk.

Persons arriving in Finland from Kronstadt report that great enthusiasm prevails among the workmen. Civilians, soldiers and sailors are cooperating and sharing the food supply. The fortress is determined not to capitulate.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, March 14.—Advices from Helsinki to-day state that Kravnya Gorka has been recaptured from the Russian revolutionaries by Soviet troops and the garrison now consists chiefly of a cadet corps. Leon Trotsky, the Soviet War Minister, has ordered big howitzers to Oranienbaum, on the Gulf of Finland, opposite Kronstadt, after executing M. Kolesov, chief officer of the Flying Station, and forty-four other rebels, the advices say. The Moscow rising is reported to have been quelled.

RESTORE CLARA BARTON HOME.

WORCESTER, Mass., March 14.—The old home of Clara Barton, in North Oxford, was transferred to-day by Carl O. Carlson to the Woman's National Missionary Society of the Universalist Church, which is to restore the place and make it a memorial home to be used as a resort for visitors.

Bob's ARCOLA boosts him in his job

[DIALOGUED FROM STORIES OF ARCOLA USERS]

"I tell you, Dad," said Bob, "our cold house wouldn't make a hit if I brought out those chaps from the office."

"You don't appreciate your home," I got back. It hurt to think he was ashamed of it.

"Oh, the house is O. K.," he agreed; 'but icy rooms don't make friends who help a fellow.' Bob picks his associates from those higher up.

"Just about then Bob happened to get his eyes on an ARCOLA in Bradley's window—he's our local heating man. Believe me, Bob got busy.

"I'll buy it myself!" he said, "It won't be much—and the heater will ornament the living room."

"The job was done in three days; and next night Bob brought out two chaps from the office. Funny, but Bob goes up fast in his job.

"Besides, the ARCOLA has cut our coal bill in the middle, and saved Mother a lot of work."

The IDEAL-ARCOLA gives low-cost, healthful warmth, through hot-water radiators to the small home, school or store. It places the cottage on the heating plane of the First Mansion in the Land.

The water-jacketed ARCOLA is of itself a radiator. Replaces stoves, wastes no heat up chimneys, leaks no coal gas. Each tenant may have a separate ARCOLA. If used to heat part of building, extra sections and radiators may be added later.

The complete ARCOLA system, installed by your local dealer, costs but little more than a stove for each room; and far less than old expense for a hot-water heating system. No fire risk; children cannot burn themselves.

Catalog has open views of houses, flats, stores, offices, with ARCOLA. Write Dept. 21.
